

network

Sophia Salaman chooses the best merchandise and events worldwide

From 8 to 13 March, Design Centre Chelsea Harbour hosts London Design Week, which brings together 120 showrooms and more than 600 brands. As well as talks, workshops and panel discussions, expect new launches, demonstrations, installations and discovery tours. For information, ring 020 7225 9166, or visit dcch.co.uk.

Thanks to its sleek, curvaceous design, Gaze Burvill's 'Lizard' lounge was awarded a coveted Design Guild Mark by the Furniture Makers' Company. Elegantly contoured, exceptionally comfortable and beautifully crafted, like all the pieces the firm produces it shows attention to detail and is built to last. Ring 01420 588444, or visit gazeburvill.com.

Deirdre Dyson's new 'Looking Glass' collection comprises eight designs. Her aim, she said, 'was to simulate a visual glassy appearance using wool and silk', and in the process, she plays with concepts such as transparency, overlapping and distortion. Deirdre Dyson, 554 King's Rd, London SW6 (020 7384 4464; deirdredyson.com).

Philippe Starck has worked alongside champagne house Louis Roederer to create 'Brut Nature 2012'. To mark the occasion the company held a competition for students at the Royal Academy of Arts to create a piece of work that captures the spirit and terroir of champagne. The winning entry by Sofia Clausse is seen here. Visit louis-roederer.com.

Founded in 1981 by Sally McQuillan and her husband in California, Raoul Textiles prides itself on its vibrant use of colour and pattern. The company prints on the finest Belgian linen, and everything – from initial sketch to the building of screens – is done by hand in its workshop. Seen here is 'Zelda' in spring. Visit raoultextiles.com ■